BREAKFAST BEVERAGE. — Homœopathic Practitioners, and the Medical Profession generally, recommend cocoa as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homœopathy was first introduced into this country, there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in the crude state, or so unskillfully manufactured as to obtain little notice. J. Epps, of London, homœopathic chemist, was induced in the year 1839 to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through, as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach. For general use, Epps's cocoa is distinguished as an invigorating, grateful breakfast beverage, with a delicious aroma. Dr. Hassall, in his work "Food and its Adulterations," says:—"Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles; every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea." Directions:—Two teaspoonfuls of the powder in a breakfast cup, filled up with boiling water or milk. Secured in tinned  $\frac{1}{2}$ -lb.,  $\frac{3}{4}$ -lb., and 1-lb. labelled packets, and sold at 1s. 6d. per lb., by grocers, confectioners, and chemists. Each packet is labelled "J. 428 MILLIONS OF QUADRILLES IN ONE WORK.

THE QUADRILLE MELODIST, Composed and

Invented for the Pianoforte, by the late J. CLINTON, Professor in the Royal Academy of Music. Op. 83. Published at 11s.; sold at half-price, carriage free, London, 5s. 8d.
 London: Published by E. Butler and Co., 217, New Kent-road, S.E.

This work is contained in a neat case, and consists of a series of 462 Cards, upon each of which there are one or two bars of Music; one half of them are lettered from A to U with single letters, and the other half with double letters, from AA to UU; which are placed in separate racks, each rack is divided into 21 divisions, each division containing 11 cards, which are numbered from A 1 to U 11, and so on consecutively to U 11, and the double letters in the same order from AA to UU. The Melody may be changed by drawing out the front Card of one or more divisions, as when the front Card is removed a new Melody appears. If this plan was pursued throughout, every note of the Melody would be entirely different; but a considerable alteration may be obtained by changing a few of them promiscuously. And if the packs were shuffled each time, the changes would be almost perpetual. In short, the Cards may be changed in any manner that may suggest itself to the performer, provided always that they follow alphabetically. By calculation it is ascertained that, from the single-lettered Cards alone, 214 millions of Quadrilles or Melodies may be obtained.

The rules given for changing the Melody of the Cards with single letters are alike applicable to the double letters; and there may be obtained from the whole of this work 428 millions of Quadrilles or Melodies.

For No. 1, Le Pantalon, play from the single-lettered Cards.

For No. 2, L'Eté, play from the double-lettered Cards, and so on alternately to the end.

While the performer is using the double-lettered Cards for Fig. 2, a second person may be preparing the single-lettered Cards for Fig. 3, and vice versa.

In nearly all the sets of Quadrilles hitherto published, each tune is given but once; and as that must be played four times, it necessarily follows that it becomes monotonous; in this valuable work it can be varied every time, if desirable; another advantage is, that, should any particular bar be found too difficult, it can be changed, and an easier passage substituted; for it is well known that all passages are not alike easy to all players; for example, small hands generally experience a difficulty in playing Octaves, or full Chords; this may be avoided by changing any Card on which passages of that nature appear, as by the construction all the Cards are made to precede and follow each other in alphabetical progression, without disturbing the flow of the Melody; this renders the work available for players of all degrees of proficiency. Should the performer wish to preserve any particular Quadrille, it should be copied, or the letters and numbers of each Card noted down on a slip of paper, for as in the Kaleidoscope the same form may never be seen a second time, so in this work the same Melody may never be obtained twice.

A similar plan must be adopted by those who cannot play fluently at first sight; thus, let every front Card be No. 1, and those immediately under be No. 2, so that when all the front rank is removed, the Cards No. 2 will at once appear. The same may be observed with the double letters; by which means a set of Quadrilles may be practised beforehand, like any other piece of Music.

At Quadrille Parties, where Professional Performers are not engaged, an inconvenience frequently arises from want of Quadrille Music, the possession of this work will supply that deficiency. It is also strongly recommended for playing at first sight, as every time the Cards are changed, there is a new piece of Music presented to the performer.

For a Souvenir, or Birthday Present, nothing can be more acceptable to a Musical Amateur; as it is useful, instructive, elegant in its appearance, and will at all times be a source of amusement to Pianoforte players.

CAUTION.

The whole of the Melodies obtained from this work are Copyright; consequently they cannot be published in any form without the permission (in writing) of the Proprietors.

MOZART'S LETTERS (1769-1791), translated from the Collection of LUDWIG NOHL by Lady WALLACE.

"Every admirer of Mozart owes a debt of gratitude to Ludwig Nohl for the labour and assiduity with which he has collected Mozart's letters; and to Lady Wallace for the care and sprightliness with which she has rendered them into English. It is long since a book of like interest has been given to the musical and music-loving world. These letters are essentially characteristic; and besides the glimpse they afford us with regard to the creation and publication of his great works, they bring the man himself before us in the most vivid and effectual manner. The work must become as popular as it is interesting."—Notes and Queries.
